Fire in Hull Street's Business District Destroys Stable and Warehouse.

THE LOSS ABOUT $2,500

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hull Street.

chester for several years was witnight when the stable and warehouse of R. H. Richardson, in the rear of his hardware establishment, at No. 1310 Hull Street, was totally destroyed, and Johnson's lunkshop.

The fire started a few minutes before it o'clock, and the entire city was lighted by the blaze. Had the departsponding to the alarm, Richardson's hardware establishment and several other buildings in the vicinity would have been destroyed.

When the department arrived, the fire had already devoured the and it looked for some time as though the store and adjoining property would certainly be burned, but through the heroic efforts of the firemen and citizens who assisted them, the building was saved and the flames were kept from the other buildings.

Considerable Loss.

Just what the loss by the fire will amount to could not be learned last night. Mr. Richardson stated that he had stock valued at $700 in the warehouse, and this was not covered by insurance. This atock consisted of farm wagons and implements. Two wagons were saved. The olsy horse in the stable was rescued. The loss to Messre, Fahr and Johnson is not known, but roughly it might be stated that the entire loss by fire will amount to about $2,500. Whether or not the buildings of Fahr and Johnson were covered by insurance could not be learned last night.

Origin of Fire.

Origin of Fire.

Origin of Fire.

Mr. Richardson was asked concerning the origin of the fire, and he said:

"Of course, I could not say positively just what the cause was, but I am of the opinion that the blaze was started by the turning over of a luntern in the stable. Shortly before the fire was discovered I sent one of my clorks to the stable to make a bed for my horse, which had just been clipped. The lantern he had probably overturned and this set fire to the straw. There were several barrels of tar in the yard and one of these was leaking, and I think that this was ignited from the flames in the straw."

Another alarm of fire was turned in at 8:30 sast night and the department went and W. S. McCoys, in Richmond.

HON. JAMES BRYCE

British Ambassador Guest of Honor at Pilgrims' Society, Dinner.

MR. CHOATE'S INTRODUCTION

NEW YORK, March 23,-James Bryce, British ambassador at Wash-ington, made his first official appearance before an American audience as the guest to-night of the Pilgrims' Society at a dinner at the Waldorf-

The gathering was notable both in point of speakers and in the character of the speech-making.

In proposing the health of the ambassador, Mr. Choate said, among other things: "If it be the supreme fitness of an ambassador, as Machiavelli seemed to think, to understand therearchise." oughly and equally well the people from whom he comes and the people to whom he is sent, no man was ever more happily chosen.

more happily chosen.

Mr. Bryce Speaks.

After returning thanks to the Pligrins, Mr. Bryce said; "There are in the masses of our people, many whose knowledge of literature and institutions is slender, but to whom America is the land to which their brothers and their children have gone, the land which stands to their minds as being pre-eminently the land of human equality, the land of a free sarger, the land promises a future in which the masses shall—such is their belief—fare better than they have ever done before. Strong as this sentiment is—and this is the other point I want to make clear—there is nothing as dusive in it, nothing to which any other nation can object.

"You have gone further than any other nation in giving comfort, enlightenment and opportunities for progress to the individual man in whatever station or of whatever stock. Yet how much there is still to do. hay God aven snything which would divert either you or us from the task of making our own people prosperous, tranquil and happy."
